Private

The Charles E. Kern House is a frame, two story, gable-roofed building with its gable end facade oriented to the northeast. Its basic configuration is a three bay by two bay main block with a full facade porch that continues around to the southeast elevation as an enclosed room. The facade is three bays wide with a center door on the first floor, and two bays on the second; a small square window pierces the gable. One over one sash windows with plain board surrounds and simple drip moldings light the building on all elevations. Weatherboard siding with cornerboards covers the exterior walls. A frame bank barn on a poured concrete foundation is located north of the house. Several frame outbuildings are also included on the property.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Charles E. Kern House is located on the southeast side of Mason Road approximately 1.1 miles northeast of U.S. Route 50. The house, a barn, and several outbuildings are clustered together at the end of a dirt lane .3 mile from the road.

The house is a frame, two story, gable-roofed building with its gable end facade oriented to the northeast. Its basic configuration is a three bay by two bay main block with a full facade porch that continues around to the southeast elevation as an enclosed room. The facade is three bays wide with a center door on the first floor, and two bays on the second; a small square window pierces the gable. The building is set into a hill so that the basement is on ground level at the rear. A one story, gable-roofed wing with a lower level extends southeast from the southern corner of the house, and a one story shed wing is positioned at the basement level of the southwest elevation.

One over one sash windows with plain board surrounds and simple drip moldings light the building on all elevations. Weatherboard siding with cornerboards covers the exterior walls. The roof, which is covered with corrugated metal, has exposed rafter ends and a brick stove chimney at the center of the ridgeline.

The gable and shed wings at the rear of the house may be original, as they have the same concrete foundation, wall covering, and roof and window details as the main block. The facade porch appears to have new supports which consist of four brick piers topped by battered columns.

A frame bank barn on a poured concrete foundation is located north of the house. Several frame outbuildings are also included on the property.
